

DOCS IN PROGRESS

INFORMATION

Scottish Documentary Institute is pleased to organise Docs in Progress screenings on a quarterly basis in 2011-2012.

Selected filmmakers will be offered the opportunity to screen 20 minutes of their rough-cut to a supportive audience followed by a 30 minute conversation focusing on creative decision making and editing. A great way to test your film on a real live audience and possibly even give you some fresh ideas to take back to the edit suite...

There will be three rounds for application with deadlines in November 2011, January and April 2012.

The screenings will take place in Edinburgh, at the Edinburgh College of Art.

Who can apply?

Any UK-based filmmaker or producer with a documentary at a rough cut stage willing to share it with an audience and eager to receive some constructive feedback can apply.

Your film should have the potential for a minimum of 52 minutes running time on any theme.

Fee

Application and participation to Docs in Progress are free for rounds 1 & 2.

A £30 administrative fee will apply to round 3 as the screenings will be part of the Edinburgh Pitch, and on this occasion SDI will put together a panel of international decision makers to give feedback.

Please note that SDI will not cover travel, accommodation and subsistence expenses.

Guidelines for submitting your rough-cut

Apply online: www.scottishdocinstitute.com/apply/docs-in-progress

You will be asked to submit:

- one proposal (2 pages maximum – Word document only) to be uploaded when filling in the application form.
- a one page CV / Filmography (1 page maximum – Word document only) to be uploaded when filling in the application form.

- your rough-cut. An online version (on Vimeo or YouTube) is much preferred – please indicate the URL and password if applicable. Alternatively send us a DVD labelled clearly with your name.

If sending a DVD, post it to:
